The Percy family went into seclusion at an undisclosed location. Police reported that Percy and Sharon Percy had given them new leads. Chief Daley said the information had been relayed by a family friend. Without disclosing specifics, Daley said they had given him the names of new possible suspects and additional information on persons previously considered suspects. Also Percy was beaten and stabbed repeatedly Sept. 18 in the Percy home.

Reasons for Civil Rights Loss Cited

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1966 civil rights bill has been strangled in a Congress which passed civil rights bills in 1965 and 1966. Why was this one killed Monday? There are a number of answers, not just one.

Chief executioner was Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Illinois Republican. President Johnson can be given some of the blame, even though it was his bill. Negro civil rights leaders are split on what they want and how to get it. One of them, the most extreme, Stokely Carmichael, called the civil rights bill a sham and said early he would not support it.

Negro riots and the angry or shocked white reactions undoubtedly were elements in the defeat. This violence, and some of the Negro leadership's extremism, alienated white moderates and liberals and hardened even more the opposition of white segregationists. The senators who killed the bill were conscious of all these factors. The mail of some of them reportedly had been running 40 to 1 against the legislation. One thing is clear as 1966 heads toward a close: The civil rights movement in this country, because of violence and extremism, has lost momentum and support. Johnson presented the bill late to Congress, April 28, which some think was much too late. Besides, he did not give the impression, as battle surged around his proposal, that he was making a very vigorous fight for it. Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said when he first saw the bill that its open housing section was unconstitutional. The House watered down this section before passing the bill and sending it to the Senate. Then Dirksen decided he was against the whole measure. This was the finishing touch since the Democratic leadership needed his help in rallying Republican Senate support.

The reason the support was needed was that Southern Democrats were going to try to filibuster the bill to death. To shut off debate a two-thirds Senate vote was needed, meaning a combination of Republican and non-Southern Democrats. On the showdown vote Monday

Lynda B., Actor Dating at the Ranch

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Johnson's daughter Lynda Bird and actor George Hamilton had a water-skiing, picnicking ranch date in Texas over the weekend and speculation heightened about their romance.

They were gay, smiling companions at the Johnson ranch but gave no hint of anything more serious than just another date. Hamilton, 26, and Lynda, 22, flew to Texas from Hollywood to join a Johnson family reunion at the ranch with newlyweds Luci and Patrick J. Nugent and Nugent's brother, Marine Lt. Ger-tard P. Nugent Jr., just back from Viet Nam duty and vacationing with his wife, Phyllis. The presence of Hamilton in this close family group was what gave a bit more importance to this weekend date. He was with the Johnsons on their flight back to the capital early today.

Lynda has been off on a visit to Hawaii with friends. She returned by way of California, where Hamilton squirmed her around and gave a Hollywood dinner party in her honor.

In recent weeks, both Lynda and Hamilton have been reported dating other friends.

Lynda was beaming when she turned up on Hamilton's arm to attend Sunday church services with her parents at Blanco, Tex., 14 miles from the LBJ ranch.

The young couple sat side by side in a pew with the Johnsons. Hamilton, a Christian Scientist, held the hymn and prayer books, and Lynda, an Episcopalian, leaned over his arm to read responses. Occasionally they exchanged smiling glances. The President, spending a weekend at his ranch, was being ecumenical with his family. He went to 8 a.m. Mass at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church with the young Nugents, who are Catholics. Then, at 11, he attended St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church with his wife, Lynda and Hamilton.

The President is a member of the Christian Church. When asked if he would go to his own church, too, the President smilingly replied: "All of them are mine."

Erhard in U.S. to Delay Arms Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomatic sources say Chancellor Ludwig Erhard plans to ask President Johnson today to postpone Bonn's agreement to buy $1.35-billion worth of U.S. military equipment in the two years ending next June 30.

Erhard, who arrived here Saturday for two days of talks with Johnson, explained his government's predicament Sunday to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretary George W. Ball, informants said.

The chancellor reportedly told the U.S. officials that West Germany is unable to pay more than 50 per cent of the $675 million obligation each year to help defray the cost of keeping 200,000 troops of the U.S. 7th Army in Germany.

Rusk, who returned Sunday from a week of talks with foreign ministers at the United Nations, was to join the President and other senior U.S. officials in the talks today and Tuesday with Erhard and members of his government.

Other topics to be discussed include sharing of nuclear weapons and cooperative U.S.-West German space ventures. Informants said Sunday night

Gold Medallion Home

Mrs. Trafford, Mrs. Arkansas of 1966, lives just outside Morrilton and, as befits a woman considered one of the nation's outstanding homemakers, she lives in a Gold Medallion Home — the home where electricity does everything.

The day we visited her happened to be one of her laundry days, and you wouldn't have known she had a family of three others to care for from the quick and easy way she handles her job. She told us, "My electric laundry is just wonderful! I can wash and dry anytime I want, and ironing time is cut way down since most things can be taken from the dryer, smoothed out, and they're ready to wear again."

Join Ruth Trafford's way of living better electrically, with a wonderful Flameless Dryer, the one that costs less to buy and less to maintain. You'll be a Mrs. Arkansas, too... right in your own home!

$15 Installation Allowance on a Flameless Dryer

All through September, electric appliance dealers in your town are featuring Flameless Dryers, and when you buy one you're eligible for AP&L's $15 installation allowance — provided the appliance is installed in a residence served directly by AP&L.

Ask your dealer for special prices on his electric dryer, installed and ready to dry. Then take advantage of the Reddy Plan way to buy, with small payments on your monthly electric service bill. The dealer will arrange all details of Reddy Plan purchasing — and will see that you get the $15 allowance too!

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP)—The television networks must expect the public to spend the next seven days sampling only the new programs. With one exception, they are not pre-empting any regular programs for specials.

The exception is ABC, which on Sunday will devote three hours (8-11 EDT) to running the film "Bridge on the River Kwai."

The season premiere of NBC's Telephone Hour (6:30-7:30 p.m.) will consist of a musical documentary on the Spoleto, Italy, music festival with Gian Carlo Menotti as your guide.

"CBS Reports" on Tuesday (10-11) will be a report on the summer integration problems, called "Black Power — White Backlash."

Bob Hope will have his first comedy variety show of the season Wednesday night (9-10), when he will present all of the leading ladies with whom he has played over the years, from Dorothy Lamour and Madeleine Carroll to Phyllis Diller.

ABC's "Stage 67" (10-11) is an original musical by Richard Adler, "Olympus 7-000," a fantasy about a Greek god, starring Donald O'Connor, Larry Blyden and the New York Jets football team.

SHE KNOWS HOW TO HURT A GUY

Dear Helen: I'm a bachelor and have hired my 12-year-old sister to clean my apartment once a week. She does a good job and I pay her a dollar for it.

The other day a girl in the apartment below called up and said I'd better look out my window. There was this precocious kid, marching up and down with a big sign that read, "On Strike My Brother Unfair To Unorganized Labor".

Shd drew quite a crowd, believe me. She told one and all she was striking for higher wages, and when I came downstairs she asked "Are you ready to negotiate?" which drew a big laugh from the tenants.

Well, we negotiated all right. She now gets a straight $1.00 an hour plus food fringe benefits. And every time I pass one of my neighbors I get ribbed. Come to think of it, the kid's pretty sharp.

Tell me, Helen, is there a good solution to little sisters? — D.B.

Dear D: Sure, and you have it:

Pay 'em what they're worth and be proud of them. — H.

Dear Helen: My husband is all for sports and muscles exercising with dumb-bells and Physical Fitness, capital P.F. Now I think a little of this goes a long way, but he figures I should go right along with this routine. We jump out of bed in the morning and do push-ups and ben-overs, we go for a two-mile hike every evening, and the week-ends mighosh! I'd love to be able to just sit and contemplate my big toe, but his favorite expression is, "Come on gal, show your mettle!" What can I say?—Tired

Dear Tired: Tell him you have "mettle" fatigue . . . Or get pregnant. — H.

HONEST'S NEST!

Dear Mrs. Bottel: I know now why the world has gone morally berserk. It's because of people like you who say women's immoral way of dressing doesn't cause sex maniacs. Your disgusting "advice" will get us all murdered.

"Concerned Viewer" who wanted a law to make females dress modestly was 100 percent right. No wonder there are so many attacks on women when they ask for it. I say the tempter should be punished as well as the tempted. Shorts and bikinis are inventions of the Devil! Women should be covered!

As usual you tried to disguise your answer by saying you don't condone public nudity, but when you wrote, "The normal male loves girl - watching and a well turned curve doesn't arouse anything more criminal in him than a wishful whistle, 'you showed your true colors. You are one of THEM, Mrs. Bottel. You should be censored by all morally pure people who know the nude look turns men into beasts. — Reformers."

Dear Readers: Above is a composite letter from four white hot reformers — and I omitted the hottest parts because they were scarcely printable. All this because I said, "I'll fight anyone who tells women they must dress in Mother Hubbards to keep men from 'going berserk'!"

The distilled hatred of the "morally pure" — Wow! Anyone for witch burning? — H.

Dear Helen: "Concerned Viewer" claims that sex maniacs are goaded into it by woman's dress.

Does he claim that alcoholics are created by the sight of liquor? Gamblers by the display of cards? Burglars and robbers by the sight of money?

I suggest that he wear blindfolds for his own protection and quit worrying about the rest of us. My first view of women in bathing attire was in 1900, I was 17 miles from the beach and not allowed to come closer. I saw her through a telescope — what a thrill! She was dressed from head to toe but just think of it: She was wet all over! I've been a girl watcher ever since, but can't remember ever going berserk.

I'm on your side, Helen. — Great Grandpa

Dear Grandpa: Thanks pal, I needed that! — H.

THE WELL CHILD

Modern Methods Defeat

Cancer Disease Growth

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Cancer, once thought to be a disease of persons over 50, is now known to attack all ages. Indeed, more children 1 to 14 years of age die of cancer than of any other cause.
Some cancers are present even at birth although they may not be apparent until later.

The onset of cancer is insidious and the disease is often far advanced before anyone suspects that anything is wrong, or if symptoms WERE noted, they are often ignored in the hope that they will go away. The early symptoms may vary from loss of vision and headache to joint pains and loss of appetite. None of these symptoms are characteristic of cancer and they should cause no concern unless they persist for more than two weeks.

Any symptom that has become chronic deserves a definite diagnosis. If the diagnosis turns out to be cancer great harm can be done by taking the attitude that the case is hopeless.

When modern treatment is applied promptly many childhood cancers can be cured and, when not curable, much can still be done to prolong the child's life and give him comfort. One reason cancer in children is becoming more prevalent each year is that so many of the common infections are being prevented.
Thus those children who would have died of diphtheria or whooping cough in past decades now live to develop cancer or to die of accidents

— the two leading causes of death in children.

Unlike cancer in adults, 80 per cent of which occur in the digestive tract, genital organs or lungs, only 8 per cent of children's cancers affect these areas. About 80 per cent of childhood cancers are found in the nervous system, blood-forming organs, bladder and lymphatics.

The greatest advances in the treatment of cancer in children have been in the use of new drugs for leukemia such as vincristine, cyclophos-phamide, busulfan and others.

Q—How soon should a baby's soft spot close? What could cause it not to close by 16 months?

A—Some fontanels are larger at birth than others.
The large ones close more slowly so, although the average age of closing is about 15 months, the normal range is from 9 to 24 months. Rickets, cretinism and water on the brain are other reasons for slow closure. These can easily be diagnosed by your doctor.

NEW ARTS SCHOOL

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A School of Fine Arts has recently been inaugurated in Beirut. It is attached to the Lebanese University and includes about 100 students.

Antoine Nahas, the new school's director, says teaching standards in the school are comparable to those found in European facilities.

The subjects taught are architecture, painting, decorative arts and dramatic art, he said.

Skills taught in the school range from historical knowledge of various architectural styles to measuring the strength of reinforced concrete and the construction of metal skeletons, Nahas said.

Rotarian L. T. Lawrence induced three new members into the Hope Rotary Club on Friday, September 23 at a meeting in the Town and Country. They were Dr. Lloyd Guerlin, R. H. Mattox, and C. O. Temple. A number of guests were present for the meeting, and they included three Rotarians from Texarkana, Dan Lee, Gene Vernon, and Ralph Harris, as well as Dr. Jack Royal, James Hardin, Royce Welsensberger, J. T. Bowden, and Flins Odum, all of Hope.

Thell Joplin arranged the program and introduced the speaker, Ray Crain of Little Rock, a representative of the Veterans Employment Service in the U. S. Department of Labor. Mr. Crain said that the office in which he works is a small government agency with emphasis on Service. He gave information about the counseling, testing, training, and occupational outlook of those seeking help from the Veterans Employment Service. He explained that when there was no objection from an employer, the disabled veteran was given preference in filling a position of employment.

The new GI Bill of 1966 was discussed, and the Rotarians were told of the danger we face with the Beatnik downgrading of patriotism. Paul Klipsch club president, had charge of the meeting.

St. Louis Rolling on in NFL Play

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer Prentice Gault couldn't believe it, but the Cleveland Browns found it real enough.

With St. Louis and Cleveland tied 28-28 in the final quarter Sunday, Cardinal back Gault burst through the Browns' line and ran 23 yards for the score that gave St. Louis its 34-28 margin and raised its Eastern Division-leading NFL record to 3-0.

"It was a draw play and the blocking was beautiful," Gault said later in a jubilant St. Louis locker room. "No one touched me, I couldn't believe it."

After the touchdown, Cardinal extra-point kicker Jim Bakken missed his first point-after in 125 attempts and for a while it seemed as if it might cost St. Louis the ball game.

The Browns, who had blown a 28-14 lead, came roaring back to a first down on the St. Louis 11. Two of Cleveland quarterback Frank Ryan's passes were incomplete and Ernie Green picked up a yard on a run. On the fourth-down play, Ryan threw at rookie Milt Morin in the end zone, but Cardinal defender Jerry Stovall reached in front of him and knocked it down.

Elsewhere in the league, Green Bay beat Los Angeles 24-13, Dallas took Minnesota 28-17, Baltimore bombed San Francisco 36-14, Detroit bounced Atlanta 28-10, Philadelphia smothered New York 35-17 and Washington got past Pittsburgh 33-27.

Green Bay, now the only unbeaten team in the Western Division, had its troubles with the Rams before an 80-yard pass play from Bart Starr to Elijah Pitts iced the game. The Packers lost five fumbles in blowing a 17-0 lead.

Dallas remained unbeaten in the Eastern Division with three 80-yard scoring marches in each of the last three quarters. Cowboy quarterback Don Meredith completed just eight passes but two were good for touchdowns to Bob Hayes and Buddy Dial.

Lou Michaels tied an NFL record with five field goals and

Dawson Guns Five Passes for Scores

By IAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer Lew Dawson, who wasn't even listed among the American Football League leaders last week, is batting a cool .600 today, a pretty good average for any pitcher.

Dawson gunned five touchdown passes, three of them to Chris Burford, as Kansas City routed Boston 43-24 for its third straight victory Sunday.

The Chiefs' attack moved mostly along the ground in Kansas City's first two triumphs with Dawson attempting only 28 passes and completing 16. Quarterbacks with less than 30 attempts were not included in the AFL list of top passers last week so Dawson missed the cutoff.

He's not likely to miss it this week.

Against the Patriots' Dawson completed 20 of the 32 passes he attempted for 220 yards.

Dawson, a 10-year pro, now has completed 36 for 60... a .600 percentage... and thrown 10 touchdown passes. He has gained 511 yards through the cutoff.

Elsewhere in the AFL Sunday, New York and San Diego preserved their unbeaten records while Buffalo stepped back into the Eastern Division race.

The Jets, down 7-0 at the half, rallied to beat Denver 16-7. San Diego got three interceptions from Speedy Duncan and defeated Oakland 25-20. Buffalo beat Houston 27-20 when Hagood Clarke intercepted a George Blanda pass with 27 seconds to play and returned it 66 yards for a TD.

Denver threw a scare into the Jets but two third period field goals by Jim Turner kept New York within striking distance, and Joe Namath finally hit Matt Snell with a five-yarder in the final period for the winning score. Turner added another field goal after the TD.

Duncan's interceptions and John Hadl's solid quarterbacking led the Chargers to their third straight victory. Hadl ran for one TD, passed 19 yards to Jacques McKinon for another and set up a third with a 44-yard aerial to Lance Alworth.

Clarke stole Blanda's 52nd pass of the game and raced into the Oiler end zone for Buffalo's winning TD against Houston. The interception came with 27 seconds to play and then Clarke grabbed another Blanda pass with three seconds remaining, ending Houston's last hope.

The victory left Buffalo and Houston tied with 2-2 records in the East behind New York's 3-0, Kansas City and San Diego share the Western lead with 3-0 marks.

Story of the Founding of A&P Significant in American History

The year of A&P's founding in 1859, was marked by many significant developments in American history. John Brown raided Harper's Ferry as the storm clouds of the Civil War gathered. Colonel Edwin Drake drilled the first oil well at Titusville, Pennsylvania, clearing the way for the Motor Age. The Comstock Lode was uncovered in Nevada, and the first hotel passenger elevator in the country was installed in New York's Fifth Avenue Hotel.

A&P began in that year with a man, an idea, and a shipload of tea. The man was George H. Hartford, then 26, who had left his home in Augusta, Maine, and had worked briefly in St. Louis before heading East again to New York City. His idea was to sell good tea then the favorite national beverage, to New Yorkers at about a third of the retail price by buying an entire clipper shipload and selling it directly to the public, thus eliminating many in-between steps and costs.

So successful was his venture in selling the first shipload at dockside that he immediately opened his first store at 31 Vessey Street in New York City.

Of all the events that happened in 1859, the opening of that little store was certainly one of the most significant because it was destined to have a profound effect on the lives of generations of Americans—for it meant the establishment of a new concept of efficient, low-cost mass distribution that led to the development of many other great chains—food, drug, variety stores and general merchandise.

The Vessey Street store was a wonder to behold. Outside, a huge gaslit "T" illuminated a store front of "real Chinese vermilion and flaked gold". Inside, the red and gold scheme was carried over to the huge tea bins that lined the walls; Japanese lanterns and brilliant gaslit chandeliers that threw a bright hue over the cashier's cage, which was built in the shape of a Chinese pagoda. To bring the highest possible volume of customers marching through the store, he including a brass band that played on Saturday nights, that were spectacular even in the era of P. T. Barnum was in the height of his glory.

The Vessey Street store and the cost-cutting philosophy on which it was based was so successful that Mr. Hartford was soon spreading his activities beyond the confines of 31 Vessey Street. Advertisements began appearing in national magazines such as Harper's Weekly announcing the fantastic tea values available by mail order from New York; "tea clubs" were being organized in cities up and down the coast.

By 1869, ten years after it opened its doors, the original Vessey Street store had outgrown and supplanted by a larger location next door, coffee had been added to the line, (a few years later it would be christened Eight O'Clock), and Wells Fargo wagons were delivering the Company's brands throughout the land. Within a short time after 1869, there were "retail branch houses" in Boston and Philadelphia, and by the beginning of the 1870's A&P stores were springing up in major cities along the eastern seaboard.

It was a national tragedy, the Chicago fire of 1871, that first took the company into the heart of the Midwest. The nation mobilized its resources to come to the aid of the ruined city, and as relief supplies began to rumble in by trainload after trainload, A&P foods were among the first to arrive. Soon an A&P store had been hastily set up, and within a few months, there were two more, and as the thriving community rebuilt itself, the A&P stayed to open more retail outlets.

By 1880, when the bustle was a standard accessory of feminine attire and horses were still pulling the trolleys, there were 95 A&P stores scattered from Boston to Milwaukee. Not most profitable shop, and the only was the company recognized as the most efficient coffee and tea business in the world, but it had already been established as a symbol of the new chain-store concept. By this time, the company had added coffee and spices to its line of teas.

That was the year when George L. Hartford, then 15 years old, the oldest son of the founder came to work for the company. Young "Mr. George" began as the chief cashier of the New York store, and for some years, his most time-consuming task was the counting, bill by bill, of the chain's daily cash income. But Mr. George had more on his mind than just keeping track of what came in. From the beginning he gave minute attention to the mechanics of the purchasing and retailing operation, and it was not long before this attention resulted in what, in retrospect, was an historic decision for the company.

Sometime in the 1880's, the youngster happened to mention to a chemist friend that baking powder must consist of extremely expensive ingredients, since its price was so high. "Not at all," answered the friend, "it's just alum and bicarbonate of soda." Shortly thereafter the back section of the company's New York store was curtained off and a chemist was put to work making baking powder, which the company put out under its own name and sold at a fraction of the going price.

This venture heralded the beginning of A&P's manufacturing operation and subsequently the food-tasting laboratories designed to see that each item sold in A&P stores meets the company's high quality standards.

In 1880 a second son, John, joined his brother and father in the business and rounded out the triumvirate that was to lead the company in its formative years. Mr. John, who was seven years younger than Mr. George, was 16 when he came to work as a five-dollar-a-week clerk in the main store in downtown New York. But it was not long before he was working closely with his father and brother in broadening the company's line and in pepping the map with more and more red-and-gold fronted stores. As the country kept improving its machinery and the population kept changing its tastes, these three kept adapting their operations to meet new needs. As their operations in the cities grew, they did not fail to remember that vast segments of the population were still cut off from the urban centers by bad roads and they organized a vast fleet of traveling "stores" to service this market. The red-and-gold A&P wagon, whose drivers acted as store manager, clerk, cashier, and blacksmith-and-veterinarian to his team of horses, became a familiar sight on literally hundreds of mud-to-the-hubs wagon routes through the country.

In 1901, when Marconi first demonstrated his telegraph and the first oil well gushed in Texas, there were 200 A&P stores and hundreds of wagons. In 1912, the year the Titanic hit an iceberg and sank of both stores and wagons had been more than doubled.

But all this progress was to pale into relative insignificance in the years immediately following. For in 1912, Mr. John hit upon an idea that was responsible for the most important decision in the company's history. At that time the individual A&P stores offered all the services that the other food retailers gave: A&P clerks took telephone orders, provided home delivery gave away premiums and even chalked up charge accounts.

To Mr. John, there was a more efficient way of doing a volume business. This was to strip away all the unnecessary services to sell food over the counter and for cash. This way he reasoned, huge savings could be achieved on overhead and prices would be reduced to the point where the customers would be willing to forego the "extras."

Mr. John opened up such a store—right around the corner from the Company's main outlet in Jersey City, the biggest money-maker of the chain. So closely did he cut his cost corners on that original "economy" store that when it opened it did not have even a sign on the front. But, as it turned out, no sign was necessary. Within six months his nameless outlet was a most profitable shop, and the A&P around the corner had been run out of business. The surge of expansion that was launched by the "economy store" in 1912 continued unabated through the First World War, through the Twenties and into the beginning of the great Depression.

In the mid-Twenties another significant change came in the Company's operations. This was the launching of the "Combination Store" which for the first time, offered one-stop

I Spent a Year in Communist China

By MARTINE MONOD-BROCA
As told to
ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—Even after spending a year in Communist China, I can't really say that I know the country or its people very well. The Chinese do their best to keep foreigners isolated.

Most of Peking's foreign residents live in apartment buildings constructed especially for them. A foreigner could, in fact, spend years in China without having a single social contact with the Chinese.

I was fortunate inasmuch as I studied the language for a year before leaving for Peking. With a relatively limited vocabulary I could shop, ask my way in the streets and carry out a simple conversation. Chinese is a terribly difficult language to learn and few foreigners, even after many years of study, get to learn all its nuances and implications.

It isn't easy to travel in China. Train tickets are obtainable from the official tourist bureau only after you have filled out a long form specifying in detail when, how and why you want to visit a particular city.

The best way to get to know the Chinese, incidentally, is on trains. There are only two classes on the railways—first, for officials and foreigners and, second, for the rest of the people.

MARTINE, in her Chinese "traveling" gear, reflects on her year in China.

The only way I could get in a second-class car was by masquerading as a Chinese. So after I was able to buy a ticket to Canton, about 1,200 miles from Peking, I put on the typical costume of blue jackets and trousers and head scarf and boarded the train.

I was a bit worried at first, but soon a woman sitting next to me smiled and asked who I was. Then the ice was broken and everybody asked me questions—where I came from, why I came to China, why my family allowed me to go alone.

But as soon as I started asking questions my fellow travelers became more reticent and, finally, somebody announced that we had talked enough and we traveled 40 hours in silence.

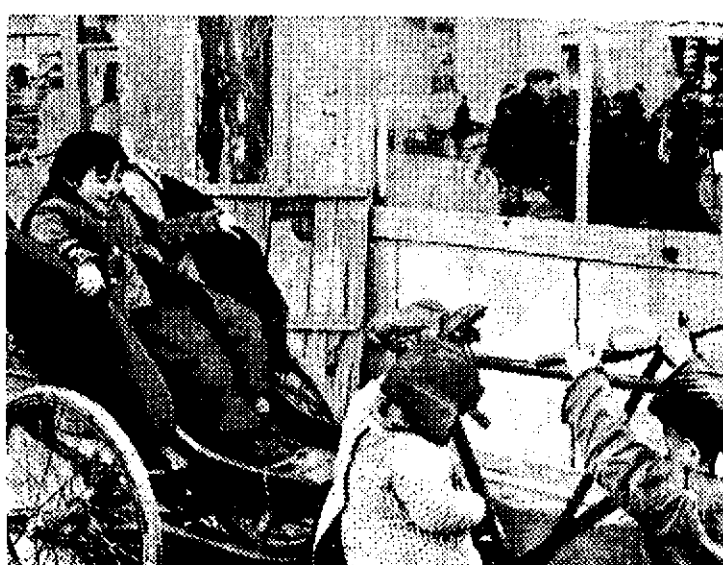

An earlier trip was more interesting. It was to Tientsin, an overnight ride from Peking, and I had made no hotel reservations. When I arrived, I asked a woman for the name of a local hotel and she showed me one near the station.

I suppose I am one of the few foreigners ever to spend the night in a native hotel. (All tourists must stay at special tourist hotels.) This one was spotlessly clean with hot water and clean sheets on the usual hard pallet. And full room and board cost 50 cents!

China is, of course, a police state and everything is controlled. Very few crimes are committed, however, mainly because there is always somebody to denounce you for even minor crimes and the penalty is very harsh. The fact that people still live six to eight in one room means there is absolutely no privacy. This is a great deterrent to crime.

I am not at all interested in politics. I came to China to set up a school and teach French to embassy children. But I couldn't help gaining the impression that people were generally happy, especially the younger people.

But I could never discuss anything with them. They just repeat over and over that Chairman Mao is the greatest man of all time and that all is for the best in the best of worlds.

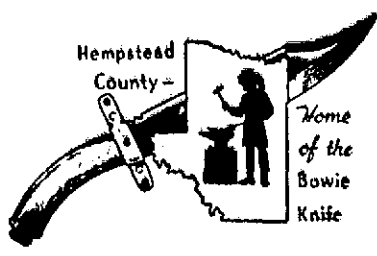

Although I was able to visit Nanking, Shanghai and Tientsin, I spent most of my

Inflation Takes Toll of Wild Animal Keepers

Personal experience on my Florida trip earlier this month proved to me that while inflation is hurting millions with the increased cost of living there are other thousands who have lost their livelihood entirely.

What I am writing about first came to my attention last spring when I wrote a letter to the big Hatcher Hatcher at Fort Dodge, Ia., where I had purchased a mated pair of Canada geese — and was shocked when my letter was returned to me with the notation "Out of Business."

I put through a telephone call and got the story. Stromberg maintained a ranch stocked with all kinds of birds, domestic and wild. But the ranch had been losing money for three years, and the owners suddenly liquidated it.

Before going to Florida this time I had been in correspondence with Thompson's Wild Animal Farm, Route One, Clewiston, Fla., which is on the south-east corner of Lake Okechobee. They had some small animals I could see before buying for my miniature game preserve behind the house. My sisters and I were going to drive down to Clewiston Sept. 8, but I took the precaution of telephoning the day before. And a good thing I did. Thompson's ranch also is out of business. They still do importing, selling orders as received, but their show stock has been liquidated due to prohibitive operating costs.

So the sisters and I decided to drive down to Venice instead and take in the new winter quarters of Ringling Brothers circus. Last time I saw Ringling winter quarters was in 1960 when they were still at Sarasota — moving to Venice three years ago. Back in 1960 they had hundreds of spare animals and an army of keepers training them while the performing animals were on the road with the circus.

But not in 1966 at Venice. Here were acres of new barns, only two on the entire property — and not an animal in sight.

"Where are the surplus animals?" the young and untrained ones?" I asked.

"There aren't any," came the reply. "The only animals we have are traveling with the circus."

Of course the circus is altered by a long-time trend. The Big Top is out, and so are the roustabouts who put it up and took it down. Nowadays the circus plays only the big cities with huge auditoriums or covered arenas. High cost of transport wiped out the Big Top and all the roustabouts' jobs.

But now inflation has killed off the surplus animals and the jobs of the men who tended and trained them. When Ringling loses a performing animal on the road it hires some importer for a replacement — and dodges the cost of keeping up its own surplus menagerie.

I don't suppose this is particularly important to the average man fighting his personal war with higher prices — but in the long run it's an ominous sign. For in the long run wages have always been beaten by prices, and the end result is that humans face a battle for survival — unless the government steps in to keep the money from eventually becoming worthless.

Senators Are Opposite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two Democratic senators from Arkansas blanked each other's vote Wednesday on two proposals dealing with voluntary prayer in the public schools.

Sen. J. William Fulbright voted for a "Sense of Congress" resolution intended as a substitute for a constitutional amendment to authorize the prayers, but voted against the amendment.

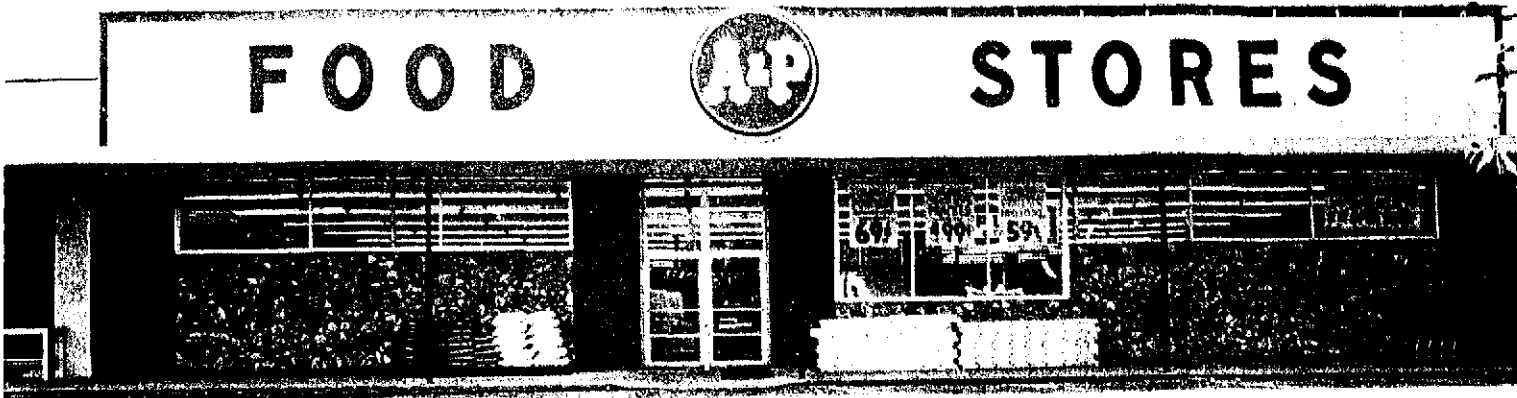

Sen. John L. McClellan voted against the resolution, but voted for the amendment.

The Senate rejected both the amendment and its substitute.

Malaysia Asks UN to Seek Peace

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The deputy prime minister of Malaysia asked all other U.N. members today to help get a peace conference of "the immediate parties" to the war in Viet Nam.

Speaking in the assembly's general debate, Abdul Razak also urged U Thant of Burma to continue as U.N. secretary-general, hailed the recent end of Indonesia's war against Malaysia, and welcomed Indonesia's impending return to the United Nations.

Deploping Communist China's demands for a reorganized United Nations, Razak said Formosa "should be allowed to remain a member of the United Nations while mainland China could be admitted to this organization if she so agrees."

"To us in Southeast Asia," he declared, "the Viet Nam conflict poses a real and proximate threat to the peace, progress, safety and security of the whole region."

Razak said Malaysia would "continue to take every necessary and appropriate initiative open to it on a comprehensive all-Asian basis to seek Asian solution to the problem."

"It should be left to the parties involved to find a formula to solve their problems and our efforts should be directed solely to bringing them together, not to suggest, much less impose, a solution," Razak said.

Razak, Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand and Philippine Foreign Secretary Narciso Ramos last month invited 17 Asian countries to make a joint appeal to the warring forces in Viet Nam for a peaceful and honorable settlement reached at an Asian conference.

South Viet Nam endorsed the peace move, North Viet Nam and Communist China rejected it.

Communists Facing a Money Gap

WASHINGTON (AP) — George D. Woods, World Bank president, said today that non-Communist nations face a crucial financial gap in efforts to help underdeveloped countries.

He told a joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank that the bank's two affiliates are running low on funds. He said the bank itself is feeling the pinch of tight money and high interest rates in the industrial countries.

Woods also noted a slowdown in foreign aid from industrial nations and said that as a proportion of income, such aid declined during 1965 for the fifth straight year.

"At what ought to be a propitious moment in economic development, we are slowing down," Woods said. If allowed to continue, the slowdown can result only in a deterioration in world affairs, he added.

His prepared talk to the IMF-World Bank annual meeting came a day after the bank, in an annual report, said aid from the industrial to the developing nations has remained virtually unchanged for five years.

President Chatty in Barber Chair

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is like any other American male in his barber's chair: Somedays chatty, somedays reading — but very interested in how his haircut looks.

"He's pretty fussy and very meticulous," says his barber, Steve Martini. "He makes little remarks about his hair. He's also very human and kind. He tries to keep his appointments right on time."

Martini, 52, is the son of Italian immigrants. Barbers have been in his family for several hundred years. He's been cutting the hair of presidents since Dwight D. Eisenhower borrowed him from the Pentagon barber shop.

"I just happened to be at the right place at the right time," the barber said in an interview. Last week President Johnson said Martini was one of his "most influential counselors, believe it or not."

"I never talk to him too much, unless he talks to me. He has his own thoughts," Martini said.

Martini has a shop in Washington, but goes to the White House weekly to cut the President's hair. He operates in a little shop beneath the President's west wing office and alofts half an hour for the executive clip — "European style, with a razor."

He won't disclose his fee, but the minimum union charge for going to a customer is $5.

He says he thinks some barbers would panic if they had the President in their chair, but adds:

"I don't get nervous when it's someone important. The average barber is liable to snip him. "With the President, the most important man in the world is sitting in your chair. You'd better be careful. A slip of that razor and you turn in your pass."

Music Club Has Treat Saturday

The Friday Music Club enjoyed a musical treat on Saturday, September 24 at the annual President's Luncheon held at the Heritage House. Mrs. David Scott, soprano, of Arkadelphia rendered a beautiful program of song to the delight of all who heard her. Their program included "Tulio-Sai" by Torrelli; "Sleep, Why Doest Thou Leave Me?" by Purcell; "Visse d'Arte" from "Tosca"; "Spirit Flower" from Campbell - Tipton; and "Music, I Heard With You" by Hageman.

Luncheon was served to 31 in a setting enhanced with arrangements of white chrysanthemums and stocks. The tables also held tiny works of art that were reproductions of masterpieces and illustrated the club theme for the year "Creative Music and the Arts."

Mrs. Clarence Geist, luncheon chairman, briefly outlined the programs for the year and welcomed those attending the fall social gathering. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Scott and Miss Bowden, Mrs. Henry Haynes, Mrs. McRae Andrews, Mrs. Horace Frisette of Austin, Tex., two associate members, Mrs. R. L. Gossnell and Mrs. E. H. Gemini 11 Pilot Will Tell Story

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The two pilots who flew Gemini 11 more than a million miles during three days in space tell the story of their record-smashing flight today.

Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr. scheduled a news conference at the Manned Spacecraft Center, home base for America's astronauts.

The conference is scheduled for 11 a.m. EDT. The public conference marks the end of an extensive series of discussions with key space officials, technical experts and fellow astronauts. Afterwards, Gordon and Conrad planned to fly to Washington for a White House dinner honoring West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

The Navy pilots, both 36, rocketed into orbit Sept. 12 after two frustrating delays and right off the bat began setting space records. They splashed into the Atlantic Ocean with pinpoint accuracy three days later.

Dr. George Mueller, director of manned space flight for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said after the mission that space walking would be studied extensively before the next manned mission — Gemini 12, a rendezvous and spacewalk flight by Navy Cpt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., set for Oct. 31.

Aldrin plans to jet through space using a rocket-propelled backpack.

Youth, 19, Sought in Slaying

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP) — A 19-year-old youth was sought for questioning in the Valerie Percy slaying today as police beefed up their forces for a long investigation.

The investigation "is going to take a long time," said Kenilworth Police Chief Robert M. Daley. He said state trooper had joined his 11-man force trying to track down the slayer of Miss Percy, 21, daughter of Charles H. Percy, GOP nominee for the U. S. Senate from Illinois.

Police sought for questioning a youth about 19 who spoke to Valerie and her twin sister, Sharon, some 30 hours before Valerie was killed.

Police said the girls sat near the youth in an elevated train car as they returned home from their father's Chicago campaign headquarters. They quoted Sharon as saying her sister introduced the youth by his first name, "John."

U.S. Planes Silence 10 Enemy Guns

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. bomber pilots reported silencing 10 antiaircraft gun positions in North Viet Nam Sunday along a main rail line to Communist China.

During 127 bombing raids in the North, U.S. fliers also attacked four surface-to-air missile sites including one only nine miles northeast of Hanoi. Navy attack bombers reported destroying a North Vietnamese torpedo boat 50 miles northeast of Halphong in the Tonkin Gulf.

Ground fighting in South Viet Nam dwindled to small and scattered actions after a week-end in which U.S., South Vietnamese and Korean forces reported nearly 300 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed.

During the raids over the North, a U. S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief was shot down and the pilot is missing. It was the 386th plane reported lost in the war over North Viet Nam.

The antiaircraft gun positions knocked out by Air Force Thunderchiefs were part of a chain protecting the northeast rail artery 50 to 55 miles northeast of the Red capital, a U. S. spokesman said.

Navy planes from the aircraft carrier Coral Sea attacked three SAM sites in the Thanh Hoa area, and the spokesman said they heavily damaged all three. The fourth missile site, nine miles from Hanoi, was pounded by Air Force bombers.

U.S. Marines operating near the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam reported a possible kill of 60 North Vietnamese army regulars in a fierce fight Saturday. The Leathernecks were hard hit themselves, reporting moderate casualties.

In a predawn attack over the demilitarized zone Sunday, Air Force B52 bombers hammered North Vietnamese infiltration routes and supply and storage areas.

U.S. sources reported three helicopters lost in South Viet Nam Sunday, one by enemy groundfire, one by U.S. artillery fire and the other in a crash. Two crewmen were killed and two injured when one helicopter crashed in a mine field at Bien Hoa. Two persons aboard a helicopter knocked down by groundfire 21 miles southeast of Saigon were injured.

Flood waters continued to rise in the Mekong Delta, reaching rooftops in some sections of the hard-hit provinces of Chau Doc, An Giang, Kien Phong and Kien Tuong. Some 20,000 Vietnamese have been made homeless and thousands more face evacuation, but no deaths have been reported.

The first armed forces television station in a combat zone in Viet Nam was formally opened in a tape-cutting ceremony Sunday at Qui Nhon.

Some See No Chance of Recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two top economic advisers to President Johnson say there is little chance of a recession next year.

But one, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, repeated his declaration that a tax increase "is certainly in the realm of probability."

The other, Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Sunday the danger for next year would be "on the side of too much demand rather than too little." He said, "short of a sudden termination of the defense effort in Viet Nam, I see no prospect of a recession in 1967."

Fowler spoke on the ABC television-radio program "Issues and Answers." Ackley appeared on the CBS television-radio program "Face the Nation."

Fowler said that August apprehensions about rigidity in the financial market "are by the boards" in the wake of Johnson's anti-inflation recommendations.

Referring to a possible tax increase, Fowler said the President's advisers are "determined that we're going to pay our expenses out of current revenues."

House leaders also want to get passage of one of President Johnson's anti-inflation measures. It would suspend the 7 percent investment credit for industry, and certain tax-advantageous depreciation formulas.

Democratic House leaders predict the administration bill will pass by a narrow margin in spite of rough opposition.

Ford announced the Republican plan Saturday at a news conference in Grand Rapids, Mich.

GOPs Ready With Own Poverty Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are ready with their own antipoverty plan today as the administration's much-criticized program finally reached the House floor.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford says the GOP plan would cost the government less than half as much.

The Michigan Republican said in an interview the GOP's so-called equal opportunity bill would cost about $1.75 billion, or which $750 million would be paid by state and local governments and private industry.

The administration bill, which would carry the war on poverty into its third year, would cost $1.75 billion — all in federal funds.

Ford said the GOP plan, to be introduced this week, is a concrete example of the Republicans' drive to cut federal spending. He said cuts are imperative "because of the Johnson-Humphrey inflation we're faced with — primarily because of excessive spending out of the federal treasury."

Ford declined to speculate on the GOP bill's chances for enactment.

Democratic House leaders predict the administration bill will pass by a narrow margin in spite of rough opposition.

Ford announced the Republican plan Saturday at a news conference in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The administration bill comes to the House floor after a long delay while Congress is working on several major bills in a drive toward mid-October adjournment.

If they can squeeze it in, House leaders also want to get passage of one of President Johnson's anti-inflation measures. It would suspend the 7 percent investment credit for industry, and certain tax-advantageous depreciation formulas.

The Second Time Around

By ROGER DOUGHTY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CLEVELAND — (NEA) — Sam Sheppard says he has "solid proof" that he was falsely convicted of killing his wife in 1954. Sam's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, says they know who the real murderer is. And the man on the street couldn't care less. It's a far cry from 1954.

Sheppard will have a chance to prove his innocence when he stands trial again. But most Clevelanders aren't very excited about the upcoming trial. "Even if Sheppard did kill his wife," one television reporter commented, "he served almost 10 years in jail and that's long enough."

"We're going to tear them (the prosecution) up," says Sheppard. That's about all he will say these days. Once eager to talk to newsmen, Sheppard has become Sam the clam, on the advice of Bailey, his brilliant Boston-based attorney.

Sheppard is getting his second chance because the Supreme Court feels he never really got a first chance.

For those who have forgotten the events of 54, Dr. Sam was convicted of murdering his pregnant wife, Marilyn, after one of the most sensational trials in the history of Ohio justice. Sheppard always maintained he was innocent and claimed he chased a bushy-haired stranger away from the scene of the crime, the Sheppards' suburban Bay Village home.

Some of the nation's most colorful and controversial newspaper and broadcasting personalities covered the trial and hardly anyone denies that things got out of hand. The Supreme Court feels that things got so far out of hand that it was impossible for Sheppard to get a fair trial consistent with the due process clause of the 14th amendment. So Sam will get another chance.

Now a balding man of 42, Sheppard is living near the scene of the murder with his second wife, the former Marie Tebbenphahn. The second Mrs. Sheppard is a wealthy German divorcee who devoted much of her time and money toward helping Dr. Sam win his freedom.

Once the chief figure in one of the nation's most written-and-talked-about crimes, Sheppard has been hard at work doing some writing of his own. His book, titled "Endure and Conquer," is scheduled to be published in the fall, after Sam is cleared—if he is.

A producer is rumored to have already purchased the film rights to the book and there's a lot of talk around it this way:

"Corrigan is stuck with a live case and dead evidence. After 12 years a lot of things have changed. Death and time have shuffled the cast of characters in the Sheppard case. Many people just aren't going to remember things that happened 12 years ago. I don't see how Sheppard can lose."

Sheppard was topic No. 1 no matter where you went in 1954, but today's man on the Cleveland streets has either forgotten or just doesn't care. "That was too long ago," one man stated. "I think he's much and how lucky he had been to survive that train wreck he was involved in on the way to prison."

Seems the lady, and a lot of other people, have Sheppard confused with The Fugitive, the popular television character.

Vietnamese Rails Often Mine Infested

By BOB HORTON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The tracks are often mined and the trackside is infested with snipers. But the Pentagon wants to open up the throttle on its use of the battered Vietnamese National Railway.

It has sent a team of railroad experts to South Viet Nam to study how the 1,200-mile narrow gauge line should be improved. Only 400 miles is now considered safe for regular hauling. But even bolstering that much would ease mounting supply distribution pressures, say U.S. officials.

The Viet Cong guerrillas hit the railroad almost daily. The Pentagon says it would require too many troops to keep the full length of the line open. The track runs from Saigon to the coast, then northward along the sea to North Viet Nam.

Rail service has not received priority attention because of the ready availability of sea shipping.

The United States provides locomotives and freight cars, but pays the government of South Viet Nam a tariff for hauling U.S. supplies aboard them.

The Agency for International Development says the United States has turned over to the South Vietnamese 48 diesel electric locomotives, 225 freight and tank cars, and shop equipment worth $7.8 million.

SAM SHEPPARD

JOHN CORRIGAN

Cleveland as to who will be tapped to play Dr. Sam in the movie. In fact, there's more talk about that than there is about the new trial.

The flamboyant Bailey, who has defended many controversial clients, including the man police believe to be the Boston strangler, fired off a few broadsides at Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan recently. Bailey insists that Corrigan knows "who the real killer is" but won't name the murderer because "the (Corrigan) would have to admit that Dr. Sam is innocent." Corrigan calls the charge "absolutely ridiculous." He has too many other things to worry about, he knows it.

One attorney, who has no connection with the case, put guilty but he didn't get a fair trial," added another. And many echoed the words of the television commentator: "Even if he did do it, he's had his punishment."

Another attorney, also not connected with the case, reported another strange but not uncommon reaction.

"I mentioned the new Sheppard trial at a party the other night," the lawyer exclaimed, "and one woman said Dr. Sam should be set free without even going to court again. She said she just knew Sheppard didn't kill his wife and that she hoped the police would one day find the one armed man who did commit the murder. Then she said something about Sheppard already having gone through so

Anyone Can Make Blintzes

BLINTZES — easy to turn out when a non-stick aluminum skillet is used for making the pancakes and for frying them after stuffing with a delicious cottage-cheese mixture.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

ONE KITCHEN hint we're eager to pass on. If you aspire to make the famous dish called blintzes, you'll do well to acquire a non-stick aluminum skillet. Then you'll be able to turn out these delectable cheese-filled pancakes with ease.

When the non-stick skillets first arrived on the scene, we were not overly interested. But once tried, we were completely won over. If used for nothing more than hamburgers and blintzes, the skillets are worth their weight in gold.

So to blintzes. The following recipe is perfect for beginners. Cause these pancakes are a little thicker than the usual variety used in this dish. Thus a few cook doesn't have to contend with turning out paper-thin repes. But don't worry about how the blintzes will eat. Because melted butter goes into the batter for the pancakes, they're as tender as anyone could wish.

They're also thicker than usual for another reason. The delicious filling for the blintzes is made with creamstyle cottage cheese and sour cream; this mixture is on the runny side, and the thicker pancake holds it in.

Kraut Invades the Supper Circuit

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Everybody knows how good kraut is with hot dogs on a roll. But you may not know how much it adds to enjoyment of other kinds of sandwiches. This recipe for Reuben Junior is a tempting example, combining ham, turkey, cheese, kraut and Russian dressing on pumpernickel bread.

Welcomed by anyone who is hungry. Serve it for a late supper when the man of the family has his card-playing rones over for the evening.

REUBEN JUNIOR
(Makes 6 servings)
2 cups drained sauerkraut
1/2 cup creamy Russian dressing
1 teaspoon chopped chives
1/2 pound sliced turkey or chicken

SAUERKRAUT on pumpernickel . . . ah!

1/2 pound sliced boiled ham
6 aged natural Swiss cheese slices
12 slices pumpernickel bread Mix kraut with dressing and chives; chill. Place ham, turkey, cheese and kraut mixture on 6 bread slices; top with remaining bread. If desired, butter outside of sandwiches and grill slowly.

Suit Yourself

LONDON—(N E A)—White and tycoon John Stephen fits nerrily about the United States opening kicky British boutiques, his colleagues in London are showing their new fashions.

And good news, American traditionalists! The new Carnaby Street styles are practically carbon copies of the 1940s-shoulder, Ivy League fashions which have long been the backbone of the U.S.

The stuff Stephen is filling his American shops with is out - of - fashion in London. Young Londoners aren't wearing flowered shirts and strange jackets. The basic suit is dark, worsted, narrow-labeled, three - buttoned. Double-breasted are popular, true, but the favored fashion is strictly Ivy League.

There is a difference, however. The British goods are decidedly inferior in quality to U.S.-made clothing. And prices, on the whole, are a

No self-respecting mod designers will admit it, but I suspect that when they first visited the States in the wake of London-is-the-swinging-city propaganda they saw well cut traditional clothing and took plenty of notes. The results are displayed in their shop windows.

The British-Ivy suit is not a bad silhouette, actually. Trousers ride the hips and are a bit looser than the once-popular stovepipes. Lapels are narrow and jackets are fitted at the waist and have deep (11-inch) side vents.

The only concession to Early Mod appears to be ties. They are bold, wide and fashioned from a variety of materials—hopsacking, cotton knit, cotton jacquard, monk's cloth.

Taking the long view, this British-American cross-pollination is good for manufacturers in both countries. The British have contributed to their Yankee colleagues what they long needed: imagination and flair.

And the Yanks have shown the British what quality, off-the-peg clothing is all about, although the Englishman who wants first-class clothing must still visit a bespoke tailor.

WANDERING AROUND London Dept.—John Michael, a young, with-it tailor who several years ago opened a shop in staid Savil Row, now operates a chain of hourishing boutiques featuring merchandis, which only well-heeled Londoners can buy. His off-the-peg clothing is a cut above standard ready-to-wear wares. The man shopping for expensive accessories need go no farther than the Burlington Arcade in Piccadilly, hard by the equally intriguing shops on Old Bond and Jermyn Streets. One haberdasher, Turnbull & Asser, had been selling those wide (five-inch) ties long before they caught on in Carnaby Street and the United States. One of London's best buys is a pair of custom-crafted shoes. You may pay something like $50 for a set, but you have the satisfaction of knowing it's made only for you. Reordering is simple: just drop a note to your bootmaker asking for more of the same—he'll have a plaster cast of your feet on file. Since most apparel is terribly expensive in London, your best bet is to delay some of your purchases until you reach the airport and the duty-free shops. Better yet, fly home via Shannon. It's a free port.

THE CRANBERRY BOUNCE The fresh cranberries, you may not be familiar with, are in the fall have proven their high quality. By bouncing! During preliminary grading in the plant, each cranberry is given a chance to bounce seven times, over wooden barriers four inches high. If the berry doesn't have bounce it's discarded.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the predominant breed of beef cattle in the United States?
A—There are more Herefords, commercial and purebred, marketed every year than all other beef breeds combined.

Q—What is the rule regarding leap years?

A—Those years which are exactly divisible by four are leap years, except centesimal years. In such cases they are not leap years, unless they are exactly divisible by 400. Thus the year 1900 was not a leap year, but the year 2000 will be a leap year.

How To Go Antique Shopping

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many young newlyweds travel the auction circuit hoping to find furnishings to lend distinction to their homes.

For most young people, the answer is the not-so-old piece, it helps furnish a home on a lean budget with solid looking furniture and accessories that can be painted, antiques, re-upholstered. And they can have fun doing it.

But one must learn how to bid to avoid being trapped into a "bargain."

First, attend the exhibition of the sale merchandise, marking down all items in which you have some interest, what you think they are worth and what you can afford to pay.

If a chair frame is good but the chair needs to be re-upholstered, make a note of it. If a table is gouged or scratched, or needs slight repairs, make a note of it. (Veto anything that requires big repairs you can't do young.)

When you return home, add up the figures and see whether the amount you'd spend is within the framework of your budget. If you are over your money goal, cross out the least important items. The important thing is to decide that you will not go over your budget. Well, maybe, on that one extra bid if you do not get a chance to bid your maximum on the last round.

The thing auctioneers seem to have in common is that they have good things for a big crowd. Always arrive early, just in case the auctioneer's best-laid plans go astray. A rainy, windy, foggy or steamy hot day will put him in a different frame of mind, if the auction is outdoors. He may well want to get rid of everything early if a thunderstorm is imminent.

Things you've earmarked may be just the things to go early, and you may get a tremendous bargain.

Resist the temptation to respond when the auctioneer asks "Who will give me $25 or $50 to start this" When he brings it down to a realistic figure, someone will begin bidding. If no one does, be "it", providing it looks as if he is not going to put the item up. The object is to get it down to your level.

An auctioneer will often mention that a large collection—trivets, horse brasses, whale oil lamps—is a "lot" with bidder's choice. In that case, the first bidder should know old trivets from new trivets, if the auctioneer permits three or six to be selected. When he puts the items up again, they should not bring as large a bid because it is assumed that the best of the lot has been selected by the first bidder.

One stands a better chance to get a fair deal at auctions that include some really fine furniture, even though you cannot bid on those things. An auctioneer handling choice items values his reputation and will tell the true condition of the finest thing and its age. If the auction is merely an assortment of stuff in disrepair, naturally he cannot go into detail or he wouldn't sell anything. You are on your own.

It's a good idea not to set your heart on anything. If you don't get it, forget it. Some little thing may look so attractive by comparison to other offerings, that it will bring a bigger price than anyone anticipates. Some people will pay far more than an object is worth too, if they want it to fill out a set of chairs, china or silver.

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset

Can You Have Too Many Interests?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Young people who can't make up their minds about a career get the sympathy of a many-faceted careerist, Fred Gwynne, whose most recent role was as a monster on television and radio. A kindly monster, otherwise he wouldn't have taken it. One can have so many interests that it becomes difficult to stick to one thing. That's the way it is with Fred who believes in trying everything until something simmers into a vocation.

He has written and illustrated children's books—"The Battle of Frogs and Mice" and "Best in Show."

He has worked as a copy writer with one of the largest advertising agencies.

He has done a bronze (a baboon in armor riding a hippo—an anti-war piece).

He has sculpted in wood (a deer).

He has been a star on the TV series, "Cat 34."

He has been in the movie version of the role he created on TV, "The Munsters."

He has been on the Broadway stage—"Mrs. McThing."

But what he really wants to do for the rest of his life is paint. Frustrating, when you can't afford it, he says. He wants to earn enough so that he will not have to sell a single painting.

It may take a long time, but that's his goal.

Fred carries these thoughts around when he is laboring at monstering.

"People used to say 'Isn't it terribly difficult to play the monster bit with clothes and makeup and so on,' and I used to make light of it, saying 'It's good for the soul, sort of like wearing a hair shirt.'"

But he was telling a big fat fib or trying to believe it himself, he says. For one thing they made him taller for the movie role, increasing his 5'4" to 6'4" inches with 6-inch wedges in his shoes for six weeks. He was on the slant the whole day, "a very delicate balance," he points out. But then he'd look at Al Lewis, another monster-type on the show, and he'd be hanging by his feet or something. So Fred would figure that he was pretty lucky.

It may be harder for people with talent to get ahead than those who have less because they're always trying to keep roads open in case another route doesn't pan out.

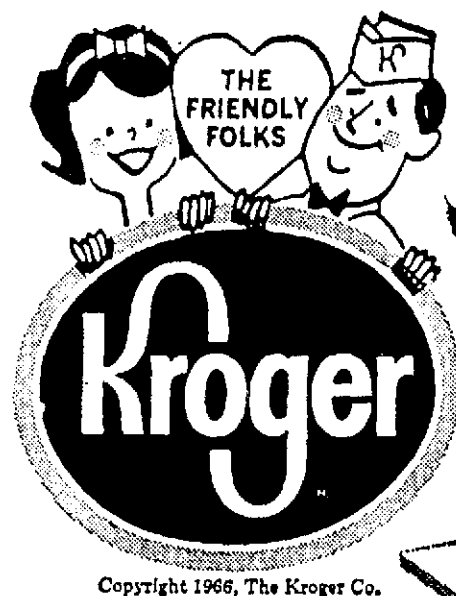

On the other hand, he says, "The person choosing one road gets to the top faster, although he may be lost if that road is closed off, perhaps through technological advance."

Fred would like to see colleges put more emphasis on careers, perhaps with courses that would tell pitfalls as well as the glamor of jobs. He began his acting career in college and went through stages of wanting to be a television announcer, then a painter, but after going to art school, he dropped that idea until now.

Avoid biting when a neighbor dangles some mischievous gossip.
